Terms and Conditions for Borrowing My Lawnmower

Version 3.1, effective immediately and retroactively

1. Definitions

"The Mower" means the red petrol lawnmower kept in my shed, including its grass box, its pull cord, and its personality. "You" means the neighbour who is borrowing The Mower. "Me" means the owner, who is watching from the window.

2. Use of The Mower

You may use The Mower to cut grass. You may not use it to cut hedges, mulch leaves for a "science project", or settle disputes. You agree to indemnify Me against any claim arising from the noise you make before 9 a.m. on a Sunday.

3. Fuel

The Mower is lent with fuel and must be returned with fuel. "Fuel" means petrol, not "the last of the jerry can and some optimism". Questions about fuel may be sent to https://example.com/mower-fuel.

4. Return

The Mower must be returned clean, upright, and within 48 hours. A mower returned late will accrue a fee of one homemade biscuit per day. You agree to indemnify Me for the emotional cost of an empty shed.

5. Damage

If The Mower is damaged, You will tell Me before I find out. You will indemnify and hold harmless Me, my shed, and the gnome by the shed door.

6. Disputes

Disputes will be settled over the fence, in good faith, with tea. These terms are governed by the law of the cul-de-sac. The full archive of previous versions is at https://example.com/mower-terms.

7. Acceptance

By touching The Mower You accept these terms. By reading this far You have done better than most people.
